

HEALTH AND SAFETY LEGISLATION

Health and Safety is embodied in the laws of each state/territory in Australia in the form of an Occupational health and safety act and regulations stemming from the act. Supporting material exists in the form of codes of practice, industry standards, etc. These offer guidance to employers but compliance with them is voluntary.

The framework is summed up in this diagram.